

the TEACHING HOUR

Open to all faculty, instructors, and graduate students but designed especially for those new to college teaching, these workshops offer practical strategies for common teaching challenges and opportunities. Led by leading UL Lafayette faculty, the Teaching Hour is dedicated to advancing best practices for creating, teaching, and maintaining a college course. Learn it today! Apply it tomorrow!

Tuesday, December 13, 2016

12:00-1:00 pm – Dupre Library Staff Lounge (Room 221)

Bring your lunch. Drinks and dessert will be provided.

Creating (and Re-Creating) Your Syllabus

Christie Maloyed (Office of the First-Year Experience) and Robert McKinney (Office of Faculty Affairs)

The end of the semester is the ideal time to discuss strategies for creating an effective syllabus. It's also the right time to pick up some new strategies for avoiding getting stuck in a rut with a syllabus and keeping an open mind about modifying courses as you teach them.

Presented in partnership by the Office of the First-Year Experience, the Graduate School, and the Office of Faculty Affairs.